MONTANA

Welcome to Big Sky Country, and your chance to hunt its legendary big game. One lucky Outdoor Life reader will have the opportunity to hunt elk, whitetail deer and birds on our latest Grand Slam Adventure. Our Montana Slam will include round-trip airfare and a 5-day hunt in the heart of the Rockies, where you'll hunt elk and deer with Upper Canyon Outfitters and Advantage Backcountry Outfitters. Elk hunting takes place out of a classic wall-tent camp, and whitetail hunting is along the productive Ruby River. Upland bird hunting is a bonus after you notch your big-game tags.

One of Outdoor Life's editors will accompany the winner on this adventure of a lifetime. We'll also provide a cameraman to capture all the action, and the still photography and video will be posted on outdoorlife.com.

Our lucky winner will be outfitted with premium gear from our partners: SureFire, Zeiss, Suzuki, Remington and Cabela's.

LIGHTING THE WAY

SUREFIRE®

No gear list for a big-game hunt is complete without a quality flashlight. The new SureFire A2 LED Aviator® builds upon the best traits of SureFire's original incandescent/LED hybrid flashlight. Its primary spot beam is now produced by a high-performance LED, providing greater output, a longer runtime and increased dependability. The Aviator's ring of low-output LEDs flood the landscape with diffused white, green, blue or red light—your choice. The new Aviator gives you both a 110+ lumen white spot beam and a flood of low-signature colored light or white illumination in one package. A fluted body and two-way pocket clip provide convenient carry options.

For most applications, white light is best because it illuminates the world the way our eyes are most accustomed to seeing it. But for some applications, colored light, such as red, is a better choice because it's invisible to many species of wildlife, enabling hunters and outdoorsmen to go unnoticed.

ZEISS

Though marksmanship is always important to the success of any hunt, premium optics also play an essential role. Hunters who invest in the finest glass generally see more game, especially at first and last light, when trophy animals are on the move. Zeiss engineers understand this, which is why the company has developed a full line of superb optical tools for hunters. The following optics will be available for the Montana Grand Slam:
